

Greater Austin Chamber of Commerce photos

The bus starts here

In April 1940, Austin switched from street cars to a bus system at the chamber's urging. "Austin not only stepped into a unique city class by discarding its street cars, but the careful removal of rails from the streets by the city and the highly satisfactory operation of buses by the transit company have made all streets safer and quiet," the chamber reported.